the count nine to three in favor of conviction, with small hope of an agreement.

Yesterday afternoon Judge Lewis held a conference with District Attoriey Cropsey and Stephen C. Baldwin, counsel for the defence, and it was agreed that as the trial had taken nine weeks it was not asking too much to require the jury to continue its deliberations for another day at least.

Pending a decision, Mr. Grout was placed in the custody of William H. Ten Eyck, the court officer, and spent the night at the home of his lawyer, at 73 Remsen Street. Judge Lewis and the District Attorney passed the night at the Hotel Bossert.
